Seven and Counting

ABOUT THE BAND

Seven and Counting is a new, nine-piece band with several tracks recorded so far. Our sound is a kind of a mixture of styles and influences each and every one of us picked up "along the road", from rock to country and blues and whatever falls between so it's hard for us to select one single genre to match our style.

We are currently working on new and original songs for our first record.

The band was founded in 2014 by Vinko 'Rusty' Baković (rhythm guitar), Daria Baković (backing vocal) and Boško Colić (drums). Domagoj Bašić on violin was fourth member but he kept himself in the band only until our first single - I'll Be There - was recorded. He may come back to us one day, at least as a guest on the concert. Anyway, the whole idea of forming this band was based on - curiosity. 'Rusty' had no prior experience in music whatsoever - never played solo or in the band, never took music lessons (extensive listening of various artists and genres excluded) and never actually thought he may go public someday. But...

After realising he still enjoys playing some songs he wrote over 20 years ago, a big question popped-up: What if those songs deserve more than just being played in his living room? This dilemma became a starting spark that led us to founding Seven and Counting. But before that, we wanted to do just a 3-4 songs to see if they could sound decent enough to go public with them. During that process, some people came, some people went, but strong band core persisted and over time we became a loosen-up bunch of people who share same sense of humour, similar music taste and, above all, we truly love what we do. No matter if it's a cover song or one of our original songs, we enjoy in leaving pieces of us in it.
